3. Galati - Port Facilities, Installations and Activity: The ship arrived at Galati on 19 March and moored alongside the pier at the location indicated in Diagram H of Attachment 3. On this pier there were two cranes. The name plates on them were in Russian; one said "BRGRAD PARIS" and the other "G. HOUPPLAIN."

a. In the northern portion of the inner harbor there was a dockyard in which five tugboats, of the type sketched in Figure A of Attachment 1, were under construction. In this area there were three factories with brick walls and sheet metal roofs and two new plants under construction. No machinery was in these new plants as yet; workmen were plastering the walls inside and out. The location of these new plants is indicated by the letter K in Diagram M of Attachment 3. In front of this new construction and fifteen to twenty meters out from the shore, iron poles were being driven into the bottom fifteen meters apart. [] this portion of the harbor will be filled and used for ship ways or other purposes.

b. There was a large crane, location shown in Diagram H of Attachment 3, and several smaller ones in its vicinity. Five meters southwest of the large crane there was a tower, sketched in Figure J of Attachment 2, on top of which there was a black box and three searchlights. [] the lights appeared similar to traffic lights.

4. Naval Vessels: There was a Rumanian river patrol boat at the pier of the dockyard. Its silhouette is shown in Figure L of Diagram H, Attachment 3.

5. Air Activity: No aircraft were seen.

6. Military Installations: On the southeast point at the entrance to the harbor there were two antiaircraft guns of 7.5 cm. caliber. They had no gun shields but were in a brick revetment. From five to eight meters distance from the guns there were two small buildings which appeared to be buried in the ground. On them there was a blue plate with white letters. The door to each was on the southwest side. [] the buildings might be ammunition magazines or places for storing the guns. The shape of these buildings and the location of guns and buildings can be seen in Diagram M of Attachment 3.
